3 14.11.2008 The viscera report suggests that the death has been caused by poisonous insecticide. It is true that insecticides can not be forced upon a person and, accordingly, in normal circumstances pesticide can not be treated as a homicidal weapon. However, in the instant case, the post mortem report suggests that the victim had lacerated wound in both part of her lips. It appears to be the contention that the petitioner, the elder sister-in-law of the husband of the deceased, has illicit relationship with the husband of the deceased.

Considering these aspects of the matter, it would not be advisable, at this stage of investigation, to grant anticipatory bail to the petitioner.

The application, accordingly, stands dismissed.
